Dolly Parton has always been open about her close relationship with God. She says her greatest songs are all thanks to him. In her 2020 book, Dolly Parton, Songteller: My Life in Lyrics, the "Light of a Clear Blue Morning" singer writes about one song of hers that "moved so many." She was so touched by the reception that she wished she could give her inspiration a spirited high-five. Dolly Parton | John Lamparski/Getty Images Dolly Parton's "He's Everything" The song Parton was referring to was "He's Everything," which she wrote for the Joyful Noise soundtrack. The Queen of Country sang the song with her co-star Queen Latifah. The song is about praising God and noticing him in everything. "In everything, He plays a part. Heals and mends our broken hearts, restores us when we fall apart, 'cause He's everything," Dolly Parton thinks "He's Everything" is "one of my better songs" RELATED: Dolly Parton Said a Stranger Predicted Her Success as a Child: 'I Was Supposed to Do Something Good' The "Jolene" singer has written over 5,000 songs. Some of them are closer to Parton's heart than others. "I think ['He's Everything'] is one of my better songs," she wrote. "I love to write songs that are simple but have a feeling in them that allows them to grow big, with an orchestra or a choir." Parton knew she'd really done something special when she performed "He's Everything" on the set of Joyful Noise along with Queen Latifah. "I remember filming Joyful Noise in that church that day," she wrote. "They had a lot of extras and a lot of people there. I remember being so touched that the song moved so many of them. They weren't told to cry. They weren't told to react in any certain way. They were just being part of the movie. But I saw that they were really moved. That made me just want to 'high-five' God for giving me the inspiration to write something like that." "Every day, I ask God to let me uplift people, to glorify Him," she continued. "I want people to feel and see Him through me. I saw that in my song that day, and I felt really humbled by that." Joyful Noise' RELATED: How the Rumor Started That Dolly Parton Is Covered in 'Secret Tattoos' Joyful Noise, directed by Todd Graff, debuted Jan. 13, 2012. It earned $31.2 million in the box office. The movie focuses on the townspeople of Pacashau, Ga., who have fallen on hard times. But the Divinity Church Choir has the opportunity to compete in a national competition, instilling hope in the people of Pacashau. However, the two lead singers, Vi Rose (Queen Latifah) and G.G. (Parton) can't agree on the style of the performance. Vi wants to go a traditional route while G.G. thinks a more modern performance will hold the key to victory. The singers must work together to find the perfect piece. Parton writes that Joyful Noise is one of her favorite movies she's ever filmed: "I loved being in Atlanta to film it, loved the singers in the choir, and loved working with Queen Latifah." Theater review by Helen Shaw The title of Aleshea Harris's excellent revenge fantasy Is God is sounds like a line from the Louis Jordan song "Is You Is or Is You Ain't My Baby." There's syncopated swing in both the play and the song—and accusation, too, all pivoting around the terrifying changeableness of women. Harris's eerie text adopts other musical references; the script's cover page says the play "takes its cues from the ancient, the modern, the tragic, the Spaghetti Western, hip-hop and Afropunk." Cardi B plays after the final blackout, but the underlying structure is that of some old ballad: Two women wreak continual vengeance in stanza after stanza. Ania (Alfie Fuller) is savagely burned, with scars covering her face; her twin sister, Racine (Dame-Jasmine Hughes), has suffered too. (Racine's "the rough one who still got some pretty to her," because her scars only crawl down one arm.) The twins escaped the fire they think killed their mother 18 years ago, when they were three, but today She (Jessica Frances Dukes) has finally summoned them to hear the truth. Lying in a hospital bed, turned into "an alligator" by her own burns, their mother tells about the day their father set her on fire—and she gives them a task. They must kill him—more, they must kill everyone around him. The women leave for the West (a television displays chapter titles in the Gunsmoke font), where they draw closer and closer to their prey: their father's new "bougie" wife, Angie (Nehassau deGannes); his hilarious twin sons, the self-styled poet Scotch (Caleb Eberhardt) and the argu-la-loving Riley (Anthony Cason); and finally, the Man himself (Teagle F. Bougere), who enters with his black hat tipped down over his eyes like Lee Van Cleef in The Good, the Bad and the Ugly. Characters crack jokes, but the play is far more tragedy than comedy: Racine's chosen weapon is a rock in a sock, because it reminds her of the story of Cain and Abel. (No one gets out of that one well, either.) Although the action in Taibi Magar's excellent Soho Rep production happens in two planes—either in a thin slice of stage right against the front row or in the flat space seen through a long horizontal window in the back wall—it feels appropriately epic. Set designer Adam Rigg and sound designer Jeremy Toussaint-Bapiste create a whole landscape out of a single white wall, and the performances are strong, particularly by the two pairs of twins. Harris writes so blisteringly that the actors could just let the language's flames carry them along. But the masterful Hughes proves to be the perfect kindling for it, and Fuller is heartbreaking. So is God is or is God ain't? The desert bleakness of Harris's quasi-biblical fable exists in the awful space between the two. Racine, flipping her hair, calls their mother god: "Well she made us didn't she?" The cautious Ania replies, "You got' get struck down." They're both right. Deny her or worship her, but the cost is the same: blood, tribute, dust, pain. There's a reason Harris doesn't put a question mark in the title. In a work this furious and incandescent, there's no space for answers—only prophecy. Soho Rep (Off Broadway). By Aleshea Harris. Directed by Taibi Magar. With ensemble cast. Running time: 1hr 30mins.
